A Philadelphia Failure.

Philadelphia, Oct. 11.—The firm of Washington, Butchers & Co., wholesale provision dealers, on North Front street, have suspended payment. Liabilities $1,800,000. The firm have been engaged in large speculations in grain and it is understood had a long outstanding account in the Chicago market. Until the books can be examined and full investigation of accounts made, no more definite statement can be made. The report of the failure created a decided sensation.

A New Telegraph Company.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—The common council has given the Mutual Union Telegraph Company permission to lay its wires by underground cables through the streets of Chicago.

The Ohio Election.

Columbus, Oct. 11.—Fourty-four townships show a net democratic gain of 85, and a total temperance vote of 347. At the same rate the temperance vote will be about 1600. Comparisons in these returns are based on the election of October, 1880, for secretary of state.

Returns have not come in sufficiently to justify him in fixing the estimated majority, but Clark Irvine, chairman of the democratic state central committee, says the indications are now that Foster's plurality will be about 8000, and that the complexion of the legislature will depend on the result in Cincinnati and Hamilton counties.

The Iowa Election.

Des Moines, Oct. 11.—Returns come in slowly owing to the prevalence of a storm. The State Register has partial returns from 19 counties which show a falling off of 25 per cent. in the total vote, the three political parties sustaining about an equal relative loss. These returns are mainly from scattering townships. Only two counties are reported with any general returns of them. Webster county is reported as electing Wright, republican, to the legislature, the first republican since 1869. Jasper county reports the whole republican ticket elected. The legislature two years ago stood 81 republicans and 19 democrats in the house, and 41 republicans to 9 democrats in the senate. The indications are that republicans will lose three or four members of the house this year, and hold their own in the senate, with a probability of gaining one or two; this would give the republicans some ninety majority in the legislature. The republican state committee estimate at this hour the republican state majority over the democrats will be 50,000, and over all parties 30,000.

Clearing the way for Windom.

Saint Paul, Oct. 11.—Edgerton, appointed U. S. senator in the place of Windom, has positively withdrawn in favor of Windom and thus far there seems to be no other candidate.

A call has been issued for a national tariff convention by the Industrial League of America at Chicago Tuesday, November 15, 1881.

A Singular Robbery.

Wheeling, Va., Oct. 11.—A very singular and daring robbery occurred this morning. Mrs. Alex. Otterson was awakened about 5 o'clock by a noise in her bed room, and discovered a masked man in the act of going through her bureau drawers. In moving in the bed Mrs. Otterson attracted the attention of the robber, who compelled her at the muzzle of a pistol to rise, and setting her in a chair, cut off her hair, which was of exceedingly luxurious growth. No other molestation was offered and the robber departed, making good his escape.

WASHINGTON CITY.

The New Senators to be Admitted.

Washington, Oct. 11.—The democratic senators met in caucus this morning and remained in session about an hour. The committee appointed yesterday to examine the credentials of the new senators reported that they had found nothing on which to base objections to the admission of new senators on prima facie evidence in their credentials. The report was promptly adopted and the caucus adjourned.

Arthur's Callers.

Senators Cameron of Pennsylvania, Saunders, Logan, Platt, Cameron of Wisconsin, Van Wyck and Sherman and three or four members of congress, called on President Arthur this morning at 12.

Cabinet Meeting.

A meeting of the cabinet was held at the residence of Senator Jones, all members attending. It is generally believed that at least two cabinet changes will be announced when the senate convenes to-morrow, the retiring members being Windom and MacVeagh.

Arthur's Cabinet.

Various rumors were current last night with regard to impending changes in the cabinet. It's the general belief that the president will have a new or partly new set of advisers before congress meets in December, and nominations are likely at any time to be sent to the senate. Secretary Windom desires to be relieved at the president's earliest convenience. He told a prominent senator to-day that the president promised to nominate his successor within the next forty-eight hours. Judge Folger, of the New York court of appeals, is mentioned as a successor to Windom.

The Democratic Caucus.

Immediately after adjournment of the senate yesterday the democratic members held a caucus lasting until after 5 P. M. The question of admitting the three new senators, after considerable discussion was disposed of temporarily by appointing a committee to examine their credentials as well as to consider the protest of the democratic senators of the legislature of New York against the admission of Lapham and Miller. The committee, Senators Garland, Jones and McPherson, report to the caucus this morning, when the decision will probably be made whether the New York senators be sworn in at once or their credentials be referred to the committee of the senate for investigation. The caucus also, after several ballots, nominated S. O. Washington as candidate for the secretaryship. No decision was reached on the subject of electing a secretary to-morrow.

Senate and Cabinet Gossip.

Washington, Oct. 11.—There is as much mystery hanging over the senatorial situation to-night as at any time since last Saturday. The session of the senate to-day was short and harmonious. The three new senators were admitted by a viva voce vote, only three or four democrats dissenting. The democratic senators met twice to-day in caucus, before and after the session of the senate. Their caucus this afternoon was barren of decided results. The question of appointment of committees, and election of secretary was discussed in a formal manner, but no decided action was taken on either question. It is understood members favor making an effort to elect a secretary at an early day, in hopes of widening the breach which they think now exists in the republican ranks as to the propriety of supporting G. C. Gorham, who received the caucus nomination last spring. Whether this step will be taken or not will probably be decided when the democratic caucus meets again to-morrow morning.

It is believed to-night there will be a reconstruction of the cabinet this week. Attorney-General MacVeagh is anxious to be relieved, and Secretary Windom has asked for an early acceptance of his resignation so that he may not be embarrassed as a candidate for the senate before the Minnesota legislature. In view of the fact that this will necessitate a change in part of the cabinet, it is thought the president is preparing his cabinet as a whole and will send it in this week. Ex-Gov. Morgan of New York is again mentioned as likely to succeed Secretary Windom, and Benj. H. Brewster, who it is quite certain has been recommended by Attorney-General MacVeagh, is still believed to be the coming attorney-general. A delegation is here from Wisconsin urging ex-Senator Howe for a cabinet place, but President Arthur has as yet said nothing to commit himself to a selection of Howe. Nothing definite, however, can be learned in advance of the intention of President Arthur in reconstructing or forming a new cabinet. It is a subject of common remark here that President Arthur keeps his own counsel better than any of his predecessors for years.

David Davis' Position.

The position of David Davis will continue independent. He will not vote to displace Bayard, nor will he refrain from voting in order to allow it. He will not consent to be elected president of the senate by either party. This will be his attitude during this session. He will doubtless vote with the republicans at the regular session in December.

The Same Old Subject.

Washington, Oct. 11.—The democratic senators met in caucus soon after the adjournment of the senate. The election of a secretary and appointment of new committees, was discussed in a very informal manner but no definite plan of action or decided action was reached on either question. Finally the caucus adjourned till to-morrow, when it is expected both questions will be definitely determined.

A Republican Caucus.

Senator Anthony has issued a call for a republican caucus.

Mahone's Movements.

Mahone visited the president this evening. He is quite assured of the success of his ticket in Virginia and says Jorgensen's flop to the readjusters is due to the fact that he found himself alone among the republicans in opposition to fusion. He says not three hundred republicans will vote for the funder candidates. He estimates the majority for Cameron at 15,000.

General Notes.

Very little interest is taken in the Ohio election news. Few politicians visited the newspaper offices to enquire.

Folger's is the only name mentioned to-night in connection with the treasury.

Vessels for Yorktown.

Three revenue vessels are ordered to participate in the Yorktown ceremonies.

The Retiring Secretaries.

Windom states that no intimation has been given him as to who his successor would be, and Attorney General MacVeagh says his retirement will not in any way embarrass the president. He regarded his tenure of office at an end when President Garfield died.

Immortalized.

A vignette of the late president will appear in the checks for 4 per cent. bonds continued at 3½ per cent.

The Quartermaster-Generalship.

Washington, Oct. 10.—There is a great deal of unfavorable comment in army circles and out of them on the proposition to appoint Col. Rockwell quartermaster general over the heads of thirty officers of superior rank in the quartermaster's department. An army officer gives the following account in the Republican to-day: "It is a mistake to say that Col. Rockwell was booked for the place by the late president. It was, however, so written down on the statement of a 'chum' of the cabinet, and a paper for the consummation of the purpose was prepared early in August and ready for the signature of General Garfield, while he was lying in his bed unable to attend to any business. The intention was to watch for an opportune moment when the president seemed able to sign his name intelligently and then finish the work. This came to the ears of Mr. Blaine, who got the story. He very decidedly expressed his disapprobation of such a proceeding at that juncture, and added that whenever the president should be found in a sufficiently healthy condition of mind and body to transact a business matter he (Mr. Blaine) would demand that his signature be placed to documents of vastly more consequence to the United States than the question of who shall succeed General Meigs in the quartermaster general's office. No further movement was made by the Rockwell party until after the death of General Garfield, when it is alleged Mrs. Garfield was requested to and did write a letter to President Arthur recommending the appointment of Rockwell as quartermaster general. About the same date or soon after General Grant sent a letter to the president that he had long desired and now recommended the appointment of General Rufus Ingalls to be quartermaster general when the office became vacant." The ex-army officer who gives this information to the Republican is a "chum" of the same rank of officers of the army, and says he knew generally whereof he spoke.

The Star Route Cases.

Washington, Oct. 11.—In court this morning, Totten, for the defense in the star route cases, presented a motion to rescind the order made some days ago authorizing information to be filed, and also presented a motion asking for an order on the district attorney to bring records and files of the postoffice department relating to this particular route to some place where it can be seen. The motion to rescind the order allowing information to be filed is a long technical document. The causes set out in it are that no notice of such information was given to defendants; that the courts without jurisdiction; that matters charged in the information appear to have taken place about three years before application for leave to file, and no excuse or explanation for the delay was given or attempted; that the affidavits in support of the information are insufficient; that proceedings by information is not authorized by law and is contrary to the practice of the court; that the information does not charge any offense against any law of the United States; that the matters alleged were impossible of execution by the defendant; that the information was not filed by any officer of the United States authorized for such purpose because of the existence of the relations of the postoffice department authorizing the postmaster-general to order any increase or extension of service and allow a pro rata increase in pay, such rule having been made before defendant Brady became second assistant postmaster-general, and the allowance of McDonough being made in conformity with it; an increase of service had been petitioned for and urged upon the department by officers of the United States in Arizona and New Mexico, by governors and ex-governors of these territories and citizens of these territories, which petitions, etc., are on file. Pay for increased service, to the amount of $21,195 was also made to contractors in the months of June and July, after the defendants Brady and French had left the department.

Wouldn't Defend Him, Anyhow.

Scoville, Guiteau's counsel, had an interview with R. T. Merrick of the District bar to-day and endeavored to obtain the services of that gentleman as leading counsel in the defense of Guiteau. Merrick declined to connect himself with the case for the defense, assigning various reasons, among others an overpressure of business in other directions. He also informed Scoville that even if his business permitted he would not defend Guiteau.

Guiteau to be Arraigned To-day.

Washington, Oct. 11.—It is understood that Guiteau will be arraigned to-morrow.

President and Cabinet.

Washington, Oct. 11.—The president has accepted an invitation to attend the Yorktown centennial ceremonies. The cabinet remained in session about an hour and a quarter. The business was unimportant, and devoted principally to the political situation.

Investment of the Garfield Fund.

The United States Trust Company holds $225,000 in U. S. four per cent bonds, and the uninvested balance in cash as trustee for the gifts of the American people. Not a cent has been taken from the fund for expenses incurred in raising it. On the first of this month a check for quarterly interest on U. S. bonds held in trust was sent to Mrs. Garfield by the United States Trust Company. A check for nearly $1000 has also been sent to the late president's mother, covering the gifts made up especially for her benefit.

Since his release from prison he had approved Parnell's entire policy. He urged people despite laws to obey Parnell.

Foxhall's Victory.

London, Oct. 11.—Foxhall, when pressed once, made an effort, but was eased when the result was seen to be hopeless. There was a length between Chippendale and Fiddler. There was a slight rain at the beginning of the race. Lord Bradford declared he would win with Chippendale. The time of race, was four minutes and one second. This evening Foxhall declined to his former position, 25 to 1 against him, for the Cambridgeshire stakes.

New York, Oct. 11.—James R. Keene of course was delighted over the victory of Foxhall. His winnings are said to be upward of $500,000, and operators of sporting proclivities have won all the way from $1000 to $100,000. Keene himself says Foxhall was backed to win $250,000. A great deal of American money was on him. Walton of the St. James hotel in this city sends a message from England, or what purports to be such is exhibited, stating that he won £40,000. Keene says of the horse: "I think Foxhall the best three-year-old in the world. It was thought he would win the Czarowitch, but there was so much fuss made about Mistake and others that he had to give several horses a year."

CENTRAL AMERICA.

The Panama Canal Company.

New York, Oct. 11.—Ex-Secretary of the Navy Thompson, president of the American branches of the Panama Canal Company, yesterday issued a statement of the present status of the work, made up from reports of engineers, superintendents, etc., just received. It begins by devoting considerable space to the sanitary condition of the isthmus and laborers on the canal. It is rumored that reports of sickness have been much exaggerated. The status of sickness since January shows 27 deaths. In regard to the work done the report states that there have been opened and recorded transversely to the axis of the canal 200 kilometres of paths, and also a passage of from 20 to 30 metres has been made from one end of the isthmus to the other according to the proposed lines of the canal commission. For meteorological studies, to which especial attention has been given, four stations have been established, at Colon, Gamboa, Labya Del, Rio Grande and Naos island. Geological surveys have been made and are now in progress. It has been ascertained that between Colon and Lyon Hill the canal will not encounter any rocks. At present two steam sounding apparatus are being put up similar to those at Colon. The thickness of the mellow soil is quite remarkable; and the soundings have given results beyond expectation on the whole line of the canal. Work on the canal has been commenced. The company now have 200 cars, 12 flat boats and two dredges. The storehouses at Colon cover an area of 1400 metres, and are full. Five barges and two steamboats are playing upon the Chagres river and another steamboat at Panama is used for hydrographic surveys of base. The fears which have been entertained by some that the company would be unable to obtain a sufficient number of laborers are not likely to be realized. The adjoining provinces will furnish more men than can be employed.

Among other things Mr. Villard promised to build a railroad from Walla Walla through Milton and Weston to Pendleton. The party left for Dayton at 2 P. M. with the expectation of returning to-morrow and going to Ainsworth and over the N. P. R. R.

About two inches of snow fell last night. All is gone now. No damage.

A fire last night destroyed E. N. Colwell's farm house, situated three miles east of here. Mrs. Colwell and babe escaped by a scratch. The house was insured for $1300 in the Commercial Union.

Death of Dr. Bunday.

Seattle, Oct. 11.—Dr. J. H. Bunday, professor of principles and practice of medicine, in the California medical college at Oakland from its organization to within a month ago, when he came to Seattle, died suddenly last evening at the residence of Dr. Case in this city. The doctor leaves a wife and daughter at Oakland, Cal. The coroner's inquest has since returned a verdict that the doctor came to his death from rheumatism of the heart, superinduced by the use of opiates taken to allay rheumatic pains.

Chinaman Robbed.

A party from Kittitas states that on Wednesday evening last two masked men entered a Chinese wash house in Ellensburg, beat the Chinese washman over the head with a revolver, cut off his queue, and then robbed him of $110. They then made their escape. A warrant has been issued for their arrest.

The Peshastine Mines.

The same party states that the Peshastine and Negro creek quartz mines are now clearing up from arastras an average of $20 per ton of ore.

The Cattle Trade.

Cattlemen are bringing over the last drive of the season, which will in the aggregate reach 1,000 head. They are expected to reach here the latter part of the present week.

The Weather.

The weather here has been unusually cold for the past 2 days for this season of the year.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Crops and Prospects.

Victoria, Oct. 11.—Advices from Nicola are to the effect that most of the crops in that valley were safely harvested before the last of September, when rain and snow came on unexpectedly. The early grain was all got in but the late grain suffered severely and some of it will be lost in Spallumcheen and Okanagan. The wheat is nearly all ruined but most of the oats and barley were got in just in the nick of time. Rain, snow and frost extended from the boundary line as far as Clinton. The loss falls heavily on the farmers of the interior who had prepared for a heavy demand from the railway, and the unexampled weather has had a chilling effect upon all their plans and calculations. It is impossible at present to estimate the amount of wheat destroyed, but in some farms it amounts to the entire crop. The wheat and flour consumed on the railway works must now be brought from Oregon and California.

Cattle Thieves Around.

An organized band of cattle thieves are running off stock in this neighborhood, killing the animals and selling them to the butchers.

A Monkey's Capers.

A tame monkey invaded a room in which seven small children were sleeping and got on the bed with three youngsters. The children screamed for help, but the monkey bit and mutilated them all severely. The parents were absent at the time, and a passerby hearing their cries, rushed in and rescued the brute.

The Campaign in Virginia.

Washington, Sept. 30.—Hon. John S. Wise of Virginia, one of the leaders of the readjuster party of Virginia, says he feels very confident that the combination ticket (readjusters and republicans) will be elected. "Indeed, the readjusters feel very sanguine. Gen. Mahone and all the party leaders are working very hard. I have heard some people express the opinion that Col. Cameron, candidate for governor on the readjuster ticket would beat Col. Daniel, the Funders' candidate, by the white vote alone. Virginians are becoming tired of the Bourbon rule. The F. F. V's have manipulated politics to suit themselves and held the offices too long. The Bourbon element has kept control from the state, and as regards the state debt question, has acted somewhat after the manner of the fabled dog in the manger. We favor the settlement of the debt question on a satisfactory basis. We believe in fair dealing all around. The readjusters and republicans will no doubt control the legislature as well as elect Col. William A. Cameron governor. The canvass in the state is an exceedingly lively one. We are bound to win."

Death of a Noted Publisher.

New York, Oct. 5.—Fletcher N. Harper of the firm of Harper Brothers, died yesterday.

Fletcher Harper was one of the original members of the firm of Harper Brothers, consisting of James, John, Joseph Wesley and Fletcher, the sons of a Long Island farmer, who, by their industry and enterprise, built up the great publishing house now of world-wide reputation. The great building in which this noted firm carry on their business was erected by them in 1853. It is seven stories high and covers half an acre of ground. About 1000 persons are employed.

THE U. S. SENATE.

Washington, Oct. 11.—Immediately after reading the journal Edmunds rising to a question of the highest privilege, moved the oath of office be administered to Nelson W. Aldrich, senator-elect from Rhode Island. There being no objections the motion was agreed to, and Aldrich sworn in.

Edmunds then made a similar motion in the cases of the senators-elect from New York.

McPherson interposed and stated he desired to present a petition pending that motion. He held in hand a communication from certain members of the New York legislature alleging certain reasons why Lapham and Miller should not be entitled to seats. In regard to these allegations he knew nothing; and he did not present the petition with any desire to delay action upon administering the oath. He offered the petition, and would refer it at the proper time to the appropriate committee.

Calling the roll then proceeded. The credentials of contesting delegations were referred to committees. Various committees were appointed and the convention took a recess until this P. M.

A NEW VENTURE.

Messrs. Charles Scribner's Sons announce that an undertaking which they have had in progress for several years is now completed, and that they will begin this month the publication of a work which they believe will prove the most important of recent contributions to American history. Under the general title of "The Campaigns of the Civil War," they will issue a series of volumes, contributed at their solicitation by a number of leading actors in and students of the great conflict of 1861-65, with a view to bringing together, for the first time, a full and authoritative military history of the suppression of the Rebellion. From every department of the government, from the officers of the army, and from a great number of custodians of records and special information everywhere, both authors and publishers have received every aid that could be asked in this undertaking. The volumes of the series will be duodecimos of about 250 pages each, illustrated by maps and plans prepared under the direction of the authors. They will appear, as far as possible, in the chronological order of the campaigns of which they treat, and these preliminary and concluding chapters will be so far connected that the completed work will practically cover the entire field of the war. The following volumes are now ready, or far advanced in preparation, and will appear at short intervals: "The Outbreak of the Rebellion." By John G. Nicolay, Esq. A preliminary volume, describing the opening of the war, and covering the period from the election of Lincoln to the end of the first battle of Bull Run. "From Fort Henry to Corinth." By the Hon. M. F. Force. The narrative of events in the west from the summer of 1861 to May, 1862; covering the capture of Forts Henry and Donelson, the battle of Shiloh, etc., etc. "The Peninsula." By Alexander S. Webb, LL. D. The history of McClellan's Peninsula campaign, from his appointment to the end of the Seven Days' Fight. "The Army under Pope." By John C. Ropes, Esq. From the appointment of Pope to command the Army of Virginia to the appointment of McClellan to the general command in September, 1862. "The Antietam and Fredericksburg." By Francis Winthrop Palfrey. From the appointment of McClellan to the general command, September, 1862, to the end of the battle of Fredericksburg. "Gettysburg." By Abner Doubleday. From the appointment of Hooker, through the campaigns of Chancellorsville and Gettysburg to the retreat of Lee after the latter battle. "The Army of the Cumberland." By Henry M. Cist. From the formation of the Army of the Cumberland to the end of the battles at Chattanooga, November, 1863. "The Campaign of Atlanta." By the Hon. Jacob D. Cox. From Sherman's first advance into Georgia in May, 1864, to the beginning of the march to the sea. "The March to the Sea—Franklin and Nashville." By the Hon. Jacob D. Cox. From the beginning of the march to the sea to the surrender of Johnston—including also the operations of Thomas in Tennessee. "The Campaign of Grant in Virginia." By Andrew A. Humphreys. Covering the Virginia campaigns of 1864 and 1865 to Lee's surrender. "The Mississippi," and one other volume completing the series, are in course of preparation, and their contents and authors will be announced in a very short time.

Catarrhal

POISON

Wel De Meyer's Treatise on Catarrh, explains the following important facts:

1. That Catarrh Colds become poisonous infection, at first local, and usually constitutional.

2. That, being Constitutional, the infection is beyond the reach of mere local remedies.

3. That impurities in the nostrils, are necessarily swallowed into the stomach, and inhaled into the lungs, thus poisoning the Digestive, Respiratory and Genito-urinary organs.

4. That Catarrh virus follows the mucous membrane and causes Deafness, Dyspepsia, Chronic Diarrhoea, Bronchitis, Leucorrhoea, and Consumption.

5. That Smokes, Douches, Inhalations and Insoluble Snuffs, cannot possibly remove infectious inflammation from the [illegible] passages.

6. That an antidote for Catarrh must possess an inoculative affinity for, and the quality of being absorbed by, the purulent mucous wherever seated.

Based upon these plain theories Dr. Wel De Meyer's Catarrh Cure has proved to be infallible. It not only relieves, it cures Catarrh at any stage. Home testimony:

WEDNESDAY MORNING, OCT. 12, 1881.

THE BRITISH LAND SYSTEM.

It would appear that the principle on which Mr. Gladstone has attempted to settle the Irish land question were about to be made the basis of a concerted and serious attack on certain features of the land system of England. An organization known as the English farmers' alliance has drafted a bill which it is said will be pushed resolutely. Its object is thus described by the Pall Mall Gazette: "The bill aims at establishing complete security for the capital of farmers, and immunity from capricious evictions; the right of the tenant to sell his improvements in open market, with the provision that the landlord must accept as tenant for seven years, and at the same rent as the outgoing tenant, the person who purchases; and the creation of a land court in every district, for the settlement of questions concerning rent, and all disputes." These ideas are clearly borrowed from, or founded upon, the leading features of the Irish land bill. It is apparent, indeed, that the reforms which have been granted in Ireland cannot long be denied to tenants in England. It is true that the English have never suffered so much by the exactions and oppressions of the landlord class as the Irish have; but this is to be accounted for by the different characteristics of the people themselves rather than by any inherent or material difference of the laws under which they live. In some respects, indeed, the land laws of the two countries, wherever they differ, are more favorable to the tenant class in Ireland than in England. In the latter country there are no statutory safeguards thrown round the contracting power between the landlord and tenant, while in Ireland, since the enactment of the laws of 1870 there have existed certain means, incomplete indeed, but still worth something, by which the Irish tenant could obtain some sort of protection outside of his own power to regulate the contract between himself and his landlord. Mr. Bright appears as the principal leader of the movement for redress of the evils in the English laws. He shows that the English land laws are unjust in the same sense as the Irish, though not always in equal degree or in the same way. For instance, the cost of conveying land from seller to purchaser is so great, the legal charges so heavy, that none but moderately large estates can bear it. It acts as a practical embargo on the sale and purchase of small estates and tends generally to the accretion of large possessions in the hands of few holders, making the number of small proprietors less every year and throwing into the hands of large landholders still larger possessions. It is not too much to say that the day has long gone by in England since a man in moderate circumstances could afford to own land. But this is not altogether brought about by the excessive cost of conveyances. Indeed, that though potent for evil in its way, is but a small element, comparatively, in the wrong that is wrought by the laws of primogeniture and entail. It is true, as Mr. Bright intimates, that the law of primogeniture operates only in cases where the owner of land dies intestate, and that entail applies only to cases where owner and heir mutually agree to take advantage of the law. But he also points out that the influence of a particular law on the body politic must not be gauged by the effects of its immediate and direct operation. The law itself, to a large extent, acts as a guide for public opinion and public feeling. Under the primogeniture and entail law there is created a sentiment of reverence—unreasoning reverence, it is true—for the inheritors of great landed estates. To own large landed property in Britain to-day is equivalent to a patent of nobility. Possessions of the kind confer social and political influence utterly out of proportion to the merits or abilities of the possessors. Hence all the energies of ambitious and capable men are directed to the acquisition of real estate as a stepping-stone to the creation of a family that shall inherit influential prestige. Again the competition for ownership among the very wealthy forces the cost of land up to an abnormal price, a price at which none but the extremely rich can afford to hold it. The final result is the destruction of all small proprietorship. In every possible way the laws give to a great landed aristocracy an artificial support. They allow a landowner, by his deed or by his will, to prevent his land from being sold or seized, or lessened in size, either during his own life or for many years after his death; they pass the whole estate to the landholder's "next heir," without diminution or change, under the law of primogeniture; and they permit a landowner, without selling any portion of his estate, to let portions on long terms, from 99 to 999 years, and to subject them to all kinds of covenants, which affect the lands for generations after the death of the owner who makes these leases, and after a change of all the circumstances under which they were made. Thus the state of many titles is an insoluble mystery; and this again becomes a check upon free trade in land. The result of the whole system is to concentrate wealth and power in the hands of the comparatively few, who glitter amid the gayeties of European capitals, and who, in the midst of their luxuries, like the French aristocracy before the revolution, forget or contemn the misery which their pauper laborers endure. This condition of things is the true cause of discontent in England; it is well described as the cause of chartism, that spectre which scared the governing classes almost out of their senses in 1848, and will never cease to be a source of uneasiness to them until the artificial support which the law gives to a great landed aristocracy is withdrawn and each man is left an equal chance in life, to use, abuse or neglect, according to his own personal qualities. The first great step to this end will probably be the destruction of the house of peers as a hereditary legislative body, and the peers themselves, perhaps providentially, are furnishing material for this destruction in their opposition to every effort for reform of the English land system. The leaders of the liberal party have undertaken certain reforms, the logic of which makes it difficult, and may make it impossible, for them to stop at any halfway measures. The land laws of the country are the offspring of the feudal system established by the conqueror and his successors in the eleventh and twelfth centuries; and though the increasing power of the middle classes during many centuries has subjected them to modifications, they have an anomalous existence under the present conditions of society and civilization.

NECESSITY OF INDEPENDENCE.

It is now a generally recognized fact that the press is powerful and worthy of respect in the degree that it is independent. The motives of human action are from two grand sources, desire and duty, and where these great springs are impregnated with the thick-and-thin poison of party prejudice, or leased to party managers for some present or expected reward, there must flow from them a stream of unhealthy motives. What can be more degrading in the eyes of honorable men, with their reason untrammeled by partisan bias or uncontrolled by slavish prejudice, than the defense by the partisan editor of the practices which under the administration of Grant, overwhelmed the republican party with defeat in 187-? And what is more humiliating than the democratic war-whoops of "time honored principles" by a partisan press in 1880, after those principles had been cast to the political breezes for the accommodation of the party on the basis of "anything to win?" This sort of adherence to party must be fatal to the influence and character of any newspaper. It must carry with it the suspicion of the promise of office or patronage, or a contract with a corrupt ring, or some other reward ranging between a grand steal and a moderate amount of public printing; or it must expose the partisan editor to the charge of knowing no other principle than the dictates of his "grand old party." It is not a very creditable exhibition in which is found a partisan press engaged in patching the party boiler after the engineers have blown it up, or in trying to launch a stranded wreck that has been run upon the rocks by an inefficient crew. That press is the safest guide which judges each question on its merits irrespective of party programme. This idea is fast becoming the platform of the most powerful journals everywhere and everywhere the idea is gaining ground with the diffusion of intelligence that the most respectable traditions for a newspaper to follow are those of liberty and independence.

A bit of political history is recalled by the New York Tribune (just on the accession of President Arthur), the bearing of which, that paper intends, shall lie in the application of it. The recital runs in this way: The whig party in New York used to be divided into two factions—the wooly-heads and silver grays. When Zachary Taylor became president the wooly-heads, whose leader was Seward, stood close to the administration and controlled the patronage of the state. Fillmore, the vice president was a silver gray. He had so little influence at Washington that he could not get a friend appointed collector in his own city of Buffalo. The death of Taylor turned the tables completely. Fillmore dismissed the Taylor cabinet forthwith, and made a new one to his taste, giving one of the portfolios to his own law partner. His other appointments were largely made to gratify his feeling of resentment against the Seward wing of his party. The course of Fillmore intensified the quarrel of the factions in New York, and was largely instrumental in producing the crushing defeat of the whig party in 1852 and its subsequent speedy disruption. Probably the object of the Tribune in epitomizing this history just at this time is to save President Arthur the labor and trouble of a long search through the record of events which were being enacted while he was yet a beardless youth. Upon the disruption of the whig party in 1853-4 the great body of the silver grays went over to the hunker democrats, while the wooly head whigs and barnburner democrats united and formed the republican party.

Dr. Thomas of Chicago, has been permanently suspended from his functions as a Methodist minister on the charges of "heresy," heretofore reported. The final judgment could not indeed well be anything else. Every ecclesiastical body must resist innovations upon its creed. Yet no one who knows the public mind doubts that the views of Dr. Thomas, or views similar to his, pervade the churches through and through. But Dr. Thomas has not pursued an open and manly course. He might have stuck to his original claim that in doubting the inspiration of part of the scriptures he was not violating the rules or doctrines of his church, and fought the case out on that line. Or, he might have frankly admitted the charge, repented of his heresy and staid in the church. Or again, he might have admitted the heresy, but declared that he conscientiously entertained it, and tendered his resignation as a Methodist minister. Dr. Thomas chose neither of these three honorable plans. He chose a fourth dishonorable one. He deliberately denied that he ever had doubted the inspiration of scriptures and maintained that he had only doubted the inspiration of the errors that copyists, printers and others had inserted in the inspired text. But this notoriously was not true. Thomas had freely expressed his doubts, but had not the courage to maintain them. He was sure to fall under the ban of his church; but he might have secured and maintained public respect for courageous and conscientious opinions, which he has not done.

The unprecedented abundance of money in the eastern states is attested no less by the low rate of interest at which money can be obtained on first class securities than by the eagerness with which investments of all kinds are sought. Referring to the abundance of money, the Boston Advertiser expresses the opinion that United States four per cents will command thirty per cent. premium within the next two years. This would reduce the interest earned by them to two and one-fourth per cent. The prediction is probably an extravagant one, but the very fact that such a prediction is made by so careful a newspaper shows how cheap and abundant money is.

The San Francisco Chronicle has published several articles on legal technicalities as employed in the obstruction of criminal justice, which are well worthy of notice and commendation. We have heretofore reprinted some of them. To-day we give another. The general use or abuse of these senseless technicalities by lawyers, and their toleration by the courts, have become nothing less than a conspiracy against the course of justice, and ought it to bring this branch of the profession of the law into contempt and execration.

It is asserted by the San Francisco Post, a paper understood to be the property of Senator Jones of Nevada, that the object of Jones' visit to Conkling at Utica was to induce the latter to make no further contest for control of the New York convention. It is intimated that Jones was sent on this mission by President Arthur in the interest of peace for the republican party. But it was hardly necessary, as Conkling could not, in any event, have controlled the convention.

Beauty, Durability and Economy Combined.
The attention of consumers is called to the superior quality of the AVERILL MIXED PAINTS, which have been used nearly twenty years with great satisfaction and for the following reasons: Its DURABILITY is acknowledged to exceed any other paint. Its BEAUTY and BRILLIANCY of finish are incomparable, often leading many to believe that varnish is employed in its manufacture. It can be washed or scrubbed without damage, retaining its original lustre to a high degree. Its convenience commends it—all ready for use; any man, woman or child can use it.

THE COMING FAIR.

The Pavilion Rapidly Filling Up—All Preparations well Forward.

The work of receiving and arranging articles for exhibition at the mechanics' fair, to open to-morrow evening, is in rapid progress at the pavilion. Yesterday a hundred men were engaged in and about the great building, which already begins to assume a gala appearance. The walls have been whitewashed and ornamented with streamers and evergreens, and the interior as a whole presents a much more bright and striking appearance than last year. The gardens have been laid out with exquisite taste and contain the finest collection of flowers ever displayed in Oregon. Machines of many kinds are being put in place. Machinery hall, the electric lights are nearly ready to be displayed, and all preparations are well forward. Reports from all over the country indicate that the attendance from out of town will be enormous. The cavalry band from Walla Walla will arrive to-night.

SUPREME COURT.

SALEM, Oct. 11, 1881.

The court met at 10 o'clock A. M., pursuant to adjournment, a full bench being present.

Ivan R. Dawson appellant, vs. James B. Crossen, respondent, appealed from Wasco county, argued and submitted and continued from last term; judgment of the circuit court reversed. Opinion by Lord, C. J.

SYLLABUS.

Where McC, by a deed of general assignment, duly executed and acknowledged, conveyed all his property to D, in trust, for the benefit of all his creditors, in proportion to the amount of their respective claims, and delivered the possession of said property to D, but prior to the recording of said deed of assignment, and before an inventory had been filed as required by the act of 1878, C, a sheriff, seized said property under a writ of attachment, duly issued, etc., and took the property from the possession of D, who thereupon commenced this action to recover the same.

Held, That the recording of a deed of assignment is not essential to its validity, where possession accompanies the conveyances of personal property, or where an actual transfer of the property assigned takes place.

Held further, That the failure of an assignee to file an inventory for record, does not render the assignment void and that D, the assignee, is entitled to the possession of the property.

State, ex rel Ben stein vs Douglas County Road Co. Motion of J. W. Hamilton for leave to withdraw his motion to dismiss, argued and submitted.

W. R. Willis, resp., vs G. W. Hoover, app.; appeal from Douglas county. Cause on trial.

Ordered that the court take a recess until 1:30 o'clock P. M.

FALL FOLLY.

Why is a Zulu hotel like a prophet of old? Because she has not much honor in her own country.

There is a limit—First young lady: "I could sit here forever." Second ditto: "And I till lunch time."

"A babe," says a writer, "is a mother's anchor." We have often heard that the first thing she does is to weigh it.

"What were the worst results of the civil war?" cried the orator. "Widows!" shouted Jones, who married one.

Susan B. Anthony wants the name of the Pullman cars altered either to Pull-man-and-woman or Pull-irrespective-of-sex cars.

Women barbers are multiplying. If they have pretty mugs they will no doubt, keep their customers in hot water all the time.

"Marriage," said an unfortunate husband, "is the churchyard of love." "And you man," replied his wife, "are the grave-diggers."

The petition of a Tennessee woman for divorce sets forth the fact that she beat her husband at a game of checkers, and was pulled across the room by the hair as a reward.

"Can there be happiness where there is no love?" solemnly queries an author in a book on marriage. Not much happiness, perhaps, but if the girl is awfully rich there can be lots of fun.

The bashful young man who asked a lady on the beach if he "could see her home," was much surprised to hear her reply "that he could go up and see if he wanted to, but she didn't think her father wanted to sell"; then she coolly walked off with the man of her choice.

THE KEY NOTE.

CORVALLIS, Oct. 10, 1881.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The president of the Northern Pacific Railroad Co. struck the key note of harmony between capital and labor, when he said in his speech at Tacoma: "I have steadily acted upon the truism that the prosperity of the community which supports a given railroad enterprise depends on the prices its products command as much as anything else. I know we can only prosper with the communities that afford us our business, and this prosperity is only possible by allowing them to get their products as cheaply as possible to the markets of the world." If President Villard continues to act upon these views there need be no conflict between the interests of the producer and those whose capital is combined under his management in one of the greatest undertakings of the present age,—one that will be of incalculable benefit to the whole northwest and especially to our own state.

NEWS NOTES FROM EUGENE.

REGULAR CORRESPONDENCE OF THE OREGONIAN.]

EUGENE, Oct. 11, 1881.

Fall rains commenced early and have been almost continuous for the past few weeks.

Abrams Bros.' new brick is completed; the painting was performed by Mr. J. B. Rhinehart and looks neat and attractive.

Farmers are doing their fall trading, and our town has for the past week or two presented a very animated appearance.

Bell Jennings, Esq., and wife have returned from Creswell to their old home at Eugene. Mr. Jennings has almost recovered from his attack of fever.

Mrs. G. W. Bond, who has resided for almost thirty years on their donation claim near the Eugene bridge, has sold the same to Mr. J. H. Brown of this place, who has a very large hop yard on the same. Mrs. Bond, in connection with her sons James, John and George, has rented Mr. Clark's farm, one mile south of this city, and has removed to the same. Mrs. Bond and sons will devote themselves to wheat and stock raising.

The bulk of the hops raised in this county have been sold to M. Wolf & Co. of San Francisco, the price paid being 15 cents. The price realized on hops in this county the past three years has paid our growers well. We know of no class of farmers that are more deserving of such remuneration for their labor than our hop growers. For the past six years they have expended much labor and money in clearing their land and equipping their yards, and have been very diligent in securing good crops. The difference between the prices realized for hops and wheat have set many to considering whether it would not be better to grow less wheat and more hops. We should recommend such a change provided suitable land can be procured for hop growing. A Portland paper suggests "that many of our farmers put some of the prairie land into hops instead of wheat." We can say after many years experience in hop growing that no such plan can be carried out and made to pay. It has been demonstrated the only land that can be made to pay in hops is the choicest river bottom land, that will cost from $20 to $30 per acre. We have noticed that even in Lane county where there is much good land available for hop growing that those parties who have selected land along the Willamette bottom have invariably had the best success in growing hops. This year from bottom land on the Willamette, some of our farmers have realized from 1500 up to 3000 pounds per acre, one yard of 3½ acres belonging to Mr. Walker Young, yielding over 9600 pounds of hops. Even the bottoms along the McKenzie and the creek bottoms do not yield as much by 40 to 50 per cent. Prairie land cannot without great expense in manuring and sheltering the hop plant be made to yield but small and unremunerative crops. That there is room for more hop growing in this county and state is very apparent when we take into notice the fact that our county does not send out more than 600 to 800 bales per year. We have facilities and could find a market for ten times that amount, as may be known from the ready sales and good prices for the past three years, the prices being paid here, in Portland and San Francisco being a premium above that of the products of the state of New York. To those intending to embark in the business we can say it will take all of $200 per acre to start the business, and any careful grower can realize one year with another, 50 per cent per annum on the investment.

OIL! OIL!
SKIDEGATE OIL!
QUALITY, QUANTITY AND PRICE

Are three great considerations to consumers in the general use of LUBRICANTS. On these we base our claims to the Trade, and confidently advertise.

OIL from shark livers is well known to possess very superior lubricating properties, and that manufactured by the Skidegate Oil Company, at their steam works, Queen Charlotte Island, has been tested in competition with Lard, Olive, Gallipoli and Rangoon Oils, and in every instance has proved its superiority. The QUALITY is good, beyond a doubt, a less QUANTITY is required, and the PRICE placed at a rate that is bound to command a large sale, and give satisfaction to the consumer. The Company has numerous testimonials in support of its merits, but to those who have not used it, a fair trial is the best way to test its properties and economize rates.

PUT UP IN CASES 10 GALLONS EACH.

YAQUINA BAY RAILROAD NOTES.

[Albany Democrat.]

The western terminus of this road has been changed from Ford's point to Toledo. That large tunnel will thus be done away with and the road can be completed much sooner. It is still the intention of the company to make Ford's point the permanent terminus, but as time is an object with them they will not cut the tunnel through the mountains to that place until the road has been completed to the valley. The change in the terminus will shorten the road some 10 or 12 miles.

Grading on the west end of the road will begin next Monday providing the tools arrive by that time and it is supposed they will.

The grade has been finished up ready for the ties from Corvallis to a point a mile or two beyond Philomath, and about 800 men are at work now between the point and the summit of the mountains.

The large rock cut near Philomath has been finished up.

Work will commence immediately on the tunnel at the summit. Large quantities of lumber are now being hauled there and the tunnel will probably be completed by the time the grade is finished to that point.

Parker is getting out a large lot of car lumber at his mills at Oneatta.

Work is rushing along lively at the bar. The scow makes one trip a day from the stone quarry and brings down about 150 tons of rock each time, which is used on the breakwater.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, OCT. 12, 1881.

YOUNG GARFIELD AT CHATTANOOGA.

I see bold Longstreet's darkening host
Sweep through our lines of flame,
And hear again, "The right is lost!"
Swart Rosecrans exclaim.
"But not the left," young Garfield cries;
"From that we must not sever,
While Thomas holds the field that lies
On Chickamauga river!"

Through tongues of flame, through meadows brown,
Dry valley roads concealed,
Ohio's hero dashes down
Upon the rebel field.
And swift, on reeling charger borne,
He threads the wooden plain,
By twice an hundred cannon mown,
And reddened with the slain.

But past the swaths of carnage dire,
The union guns he hears,
And gains the left, begirth with fire,
And thus the heroes cheer—
"While stands the left, yon flag o'erhead, Shall Chattanooga stand!"
"Let the Napoleons rain their lead!"
Was Thomas' command.

Jack swept the gray brigades of Bragg;
The air with victory rung,
And Wurzel's "Rally round the flag!"
'Mid union cheers was sung.
The flag on Chattanooga's height
In twilight's crimson waved,
And all the clustered stars of white
Were to the union saved.

O chief of staff, the nation's fate
That red field crossed with thee,
The triumph of the camp and state,
The hope of liberty!
O nation, free from sea to sea,
With union blessed forever,
Not vainly heroes fought for thee,
By Chickamauga river! —Boston Transcript.

GUITEAU'S TECHNICALITIES.

[San Francisco Chronicle.]

That a wretch named Guiteau murdered the president of the United States, and should be hanged for the unprovoked crime—which endangered the tranquillity of a vast nation—is a fact that is perfectly well known to hundreds of millions of people. To beat this fact into the skulls of twelve men at Washington City, who will probably not be of average intelligence, and to have their verdict approved and their sentence executed, is now the gigantic task that indignant public opinion demands shall be attempted. To the ordinary reader the conviction and punishment of such a criminal would appear to be the simplest matter in the world. It would naturally be supposed that Guiteau would be arraigned, tried, found guilty and hanged in four or five weeks at the utmost. Such a conclusion would be reached by any one who considers the matter from the standpoint of plain, common sense. The straightforward man simply asks himself what the welfare of society and justice demands. He never stops to reflect that common sense and justice have nearly departed from American courts. He forgets that our courts are to a large extent presided over by egotistical, technical æsthetes who adore phraseology, worship "precedents," follow with servile admiration in the trail of "authorities," and are ever eager to twist the law in favor of a knave, but never in favor of a long suffering public. Forgetting these things and never taking into consideration the stupid character of the men the law requires shall serve on juries, he naturally concludes that the assassin's conviction and execution are matters of no uncertainty whatever.

But Guiteau entertains no such a view. He is a lawyer. He knows that "judicial courtesy" and custom requires the pompous judge to ponder with the deepest solemnity over the most absurd and frivolous technicality a defending attorney may advance; he knows that most judges are merely lawyers seated in an easy chair above other people's heads, and he knows the infatuation which possesses a large portion of the judicial fraternity for metaphysics and the dry bones of the past. He dreads falling into the hands of a mob, because he knows that the mob would be actuated by a wild purpose to meet out to him actual justice. He does not dread the courts, however, but reposes all his hopes of safety in them, for he knows by experience and observation that when actual justice is meted out by an American criminal court the circumstance is little short of a miracle. He knows all the pitiful technicalities which may be employed in his case, and predicts that if he can only get a "fair trial" there will be nothing for him to fear. It was no doubt a familiarity with legal technicalities and a knowledge of the imbecility of our courts that nerved his cowardly heart to perform the brutal deed he stands accused of.

The technicalities brought to the surface by his crime, and which lie slumbering in rubbish and dust for the protection of other red-handed criminals, are already being vigorously discussed at the east, and with painful anxiety. If a bootblack in Washington city should be asked where the murder of Garfield took place, he would immediately reply: "In this city, at the passenger depot of the Baltimore and Potomac Railroad." The same answer would be given by any mechanic, merchant, military man, public instructor, schoolboy or clergyman of that city. If a judge of the supreme court of the United States should be asked that question, he would adjust his eye-glasses, take down a dray-load of old books and reply:

"My friend, that is a very serious and vital question in this case, and will require an immense amount of research and the most intense thought. It is very doubtful that the murder did take place in Washington, for the reason that the victim died in New Jersey."

The interrogator would then be likely to remark: "In that case the court would probably hold that the murder took place in New Jersey, and try the murderer there."

"That is by no means certain," his honor would reply. "The authorities all point to a lack of jurisdiction in New Jersey. The president was not murdered there."

"The president is certainly dead and buried," the citizen would answer, "and he was certainly murdered by Guiteau, who has never left this city since the crime was committed. If he was not murdered here, and was not murdered in New Jersey, where does the honorable court hold that the crime was committed?"

"To avoid argument we will admit that the president is dead," his honor would respond; "but, we very much doubt if Guiteau can be tried for murder either at Washington city or in New Jersey. The crime is incomplete at either point, and at both points there is a lack of jurisdiction."

"Do you intend to say that the assassin whom the whole world abhors is to be liberated or is to escape with a trivial punishment?" the indignant citizen would rejoin. "Would you call that justice or common sense?"

"My friend," his honor would blandly reply, "we may be compelled to call it law. Under the old common law of England, where a wound was inflicted in one county and death ensued in another, the offender might be punished in either county. In the reign of King Edward this was changed, and the offender was punished where the victim died. In this country there is no recognition of the doctrine that a murderer can be punished in the state where his victim dies, the blow having been given in another state, unless there is an express law to that effect. New Jersey has such a law, but the supreme court of that state, in a case I might cite, held it to be inoperative, deciding that New Jersey had no such jurisdiction. In the whole history of American jurisprudence there is only one instance of the execution of a murderer in one state when the victim died in another state. This was in Alabama about a year ago, but they chanced to have a special statute there explicitly bearing on the subject. The District of Columbia has no such law, and the question of proper jurisdiction for the trial of Guiteau here is a very grave one. I could cite five cases in which murderers have been discharged from custody because their victims died in states other than where the wound was inflicted. In these cases decisions to that effect were rendered, respectively, by the supreme court of the United States, and by the supreme courts of Vermont, Mississippi, Virginia and the District of Columbia. The supreme court of the United States also once decided that a man who had inflicted a wound on a sailor on an American vessel on the high seas, whereof the victim died in England, could not be punished for murder and the prisoner was discharged. All the authorities and precedents bearing on the case are decidedly in Guiteau's favor. The president erred in not dying in the same jurisdiction where the wound was inflicted. Technically the president was not murdered in New Jersey nor in the District of Columbia, and as the alleged crime was not committed anywhere else, of course no murder was committed by Guiteau and he cannot be legally hanged. Should he be executed in spite of the precedents of our learned profession, consider the deplorable effect such disregard of previous decisions will have on the unthinking public. By all means, sir, teach the people to venerate and uphold the majesty of the law."

This is Guiteau's case in a nutshell, and there have been hundreds of cases like it which have never received judicial attention. The kind of a system of courts and laws we have in this country is, for the fortieth time, illustrated. It is possible that dread of popular rage may cause the great judicial "tender-foots" of the nation to walk over a few piles of their legal gibberish and decisions, and consent to the hanging of that assassin, but whether he is hanged or not, it is ample time to consider the propriety of a complete revolution in American methods of administering justice. The present system is costly, cumbersome and worthless, and is totally unworthy of public confidence, support or respect. It no more represents the living spirit of justice than a dried-up mummy represents a living athlete.

The Story of a Hundred Dollar Bill.

[Baltimore Gazette.]

A distinguished statesman forty years ago was on a visit to Baltimore, and he gave to a colored girl while here what he supposed to be at the time a one dollar bill. The next morning the girl went to a grocery store, and after making a few trifling purchases, gave the bill in payment under the supposition that it was a dollar. The proprietor of the store, a highly esteemed citizen of Baltimore, noticed with great surprise that it was for one hundred dollars, and he supposed at once that the woman had stolen it. Ascertaining the delusion she was under, he informed her of the true character of the note and told her he would detain it until the owner was found. The girl told how she had received it, persisted that it had not been stolen, and assented to the gentleman retaining it until the owner was found. He advertised the bill, and the statesman, in answer, called to say that the girl's story was true, and that as her honesty had been suspected she should keep the bill. He then departed to the scene of his daily triumphs, and in the acquisition of a great fame perhaps forgot the incident. The grocery merchant retained the note, in expectation of the girl returning, but she never called for it, it is supposed being frightened and fearing being charged with its theft. He deposited it at interest. Years rolled on and she married, bore children and died and a few years ago a son applied to the merchant for the note and the interest, which now amounted to a large sum of money. This amount the custodians of the fund paid into one of our city courts, in order that the court should decide whether or not the claimant was entitled to it. The court sustained the claim, and the money was paid to the heir, and thus ends the true story of a hundred dollar bill.

A damsel who lived in Dubuque
Was ambitious to marry a duque;
But none came to woo her,
She accepted a pooher
Young fellow whose first name was Luque.

The bride was led up the broad aisle,
Got up in the most killing staisle;
When asked if she'd be
A true wife to he,
She promptly replied, "I should smaisle."
